Hercules and Borah
The Old Crab Family
Drifting From Religion
Wages and Employment

By Arthur Brisbane

HERCULES, looking down or up from Elysian Fields on Senator Borah, must feel that the Hercules labors were childish play. Mr. Borah has undertaken to enforce prohibition, and stop his Republican party's acceptance of slush funds for campaigns. He even asks Republicans to return the couple of hundred thousand dollars contributed by Mr. Sinclair, in government bonds. Old-fashioned politicians will enjoy that job.

Many, including old stock owners, would like to know what became of the two and a half millions in bonds not accounted for in the interesting oil-buying deal. What fund or pocket did those millions go to?

Voltaire annoyed aristocracy in his time by showing that the oldest title of nobility in Europe belonged to descendants of Venetians that fled to the marshes to escape punishment for crime. Even the oldest human family known, that of Confucius, with many descendants in one Chinese city, seems modern compared with the crab family. Dr. Gilmore, Smithsonian Institution paleontologist, shows that the North Carolina sand crab has relatives in the Grand Canyon dating about 25,000,000 years.

Men are interested in animal genealogies. Ants, wasps and other insects have developed marvelous inherited knowledge, which we foolishly call "instinct" because they were here millions of years before men came. Science shows that men will continue on earth, having catastrophes, at least 100,000,000 years more.

Some day, babies will be born inheriting accumulated knowledge and ready to attack new problems. That will be a race worth while.

Read Fabre's account of surgical operations performed by mud wasps that never saw father or mother, took no lessons, but were born knowing how.

The Rev. Dr. Stratton, in California to debate on evolution, says our people, youth especially, are drifting from religion and all respect for the laws of God or man. Our nation and race are threatened. He is sure of it. Some centuries ago, earnest, well-meaning priests of Greece and Rome were saying the same thing.

And when Christianity came along, those ancients were sure the world was going to the dogs. They went, but the world improved.

Unemployment, according to experts, is less serious than it was. That's small comfort for a man without a job.

Big business says you must expect unemployment crises. They will always recur. They said that once about financial panic, but the Federal Reserve System ended them.

Big business opposed the Reserve System, now universally praised. It would oppose anything suggested to abolish unemployment as "socialistic, anarchistic, bolshevistic."

Big business is old and age accepts new ideas reluctantly.

The marvelous thing is that unemployment is not new. In the automobile industry, 25 men do as much as 10, could do in 1914, thanks to improved machinery and methods.

That's good for workers, giving them better care for less money. Henry Ford's plan is one that will help adjust problems. He would give men good wages, for a five-day week, letting them have two full days in which to spend and enjoy what they earn.

Full development of industry requires that workers be consumers as well as producers. They must buy and use automobiles, radios, pianos, talking machines, good furniture, decent houses, everything formerly reserved for the rich.

There are not enough rich people to use what workers can produce. But make all producers consumers, give them all today

LOS ANGELES FLOOD

Dam Collapses Near Los Angeles

Newhall, Calif., March 13 (AP)—Official fears were expressed this afternoon that as many as 400 persons perished in an overwhelming avalanche of water that swept through San Francisquito canyon, breaking the St. Francis dam shortly before 1 a. m. today.

HAYS DENIES OIL BONDS OFFER TO MELLON AND BUTTER WAS 'BRIBERY'

Washington, March 13 (AP)—The efforts of a Republican National chairman to dispose of bonds turned into the party treasury by Harry F. Sinclair were traced through another graphic chapter today by the Senate Export-Import committee.

Two outstanding Republican leaders, Andrew W. Mellon and William M. Butler, told the Senate that Hays had sought unsuccessfully to persuade consignments of bonds to them in 1923, while Hays was Republican National chairman, in exchange for "contribution" to the party war chest.

Hays himself corroborated this testimony, but again added that he had done any wrong. He said he had not disclosed the interest in the previous testimony before the committee because he felt it was irrelevant.

The bonds were part of a $250,000 change for "contribution" to the party war chest.

Two men were arrested today and held without bail on charges of murder in the shooting of Joseph Campbell and attempting to murder DeVito and were sent to the jail to await hearing March 13.

A grand jury indicted on a charge of causing the shooting, according to the police. The authorities were inclined to believe that the slaying was part of a conspiracy.

Two men were rescued and damaged estimated at $15,000 was caused by a two-alarm fire today in the four-story brick building owned by the Beacon Art Manufacturing Co. at 3 Portland st., West End.

Patry Dost of Dexter & Nelson, and John Scidille, Grove st., West End, were arrested.

Grave fears were expressed by officials of Oxnard for two other towns, Pirn and Fillmore, which were directly in the path of the flood. It has been impossible to establish communication with the towns, said a message from Oxnard.

What caused the retaining parapet of the great reservoir of the Los Angeles city water system to give way suddenly was almost as much of a mystery as the number of dead that lay buried beneath the deep covering of yellow sand which now carpets the pretty little valley.

While hundreds of officials from Los Angeles city and county, augmented by additional thousands of volunteer ranchers and farmers from the Newhall and Saugus areas slushed through the wastes searching for bodies, officials of the city water system surveyed the broken dam.

The theory most credited was that seepage through an abutting hill had caused one of the supporting ends of the structure to give way.

A telegram received at the sheriff's office here from Eugene Biscailuz, under-sheriff in charge of rescue work, said that 100 bodies had been recovered.

HUNDREDS SWEEPED TO DEATH BY FLOOD AS HUGE DAM COLLAPSES

FAMOUS AQUEDUCT SYSTEM OF LOS ANGELES WRECKED

where the flood waters entered the Santa Paula and Santa Clara rivers.

Ten bodies were taken from the canyon and were placed in a morgue at Saugus.

Sixteen bodies were taken to Moorpark. Five more were snatched from a ranch where they were washed up.

So great was the volume of water that poured through the wide break in the dam that despite the 36,000 acre feet of supply in the big reservoir, the flood spent itself in a few hours.

When dawn broke over the devastated area, only a small stream was left where in the tragic hours of early morning death stalked to a degree that may not be known for days, if ever. By that time the vanguard of thousands of rescuers was on the scene and a systematic search of the areas was begun.

Estimates placed the total number of dwellers in the canyon at a little more than 500.

Bodies in Improvised Morgues

Survivors there were, but they came in straggling groups and their toll had not caused rescue officials to cut their estimate of possible loss of life as the forenoon hours passed.

A deep layer of sand was left on the canyon and it was believed this covered the bodies of many victims of the disaster. William Mulholland, Los Angeles city engineer, expressed the opinion that seepage had caused a portion of the hill at the west side of the dam to crumble, causing the collapse of the huge structure.

In its pell-mell rush to the sea, the flood traveled through dozens of miles of territory, scarcely settled and through which only lines of communication in normal times are available.

Wreckage of every description was strewn for miles along the narrow canyon which winds its picturesque way into the rolling hills northward from Saugus. Orchards, garden areas, and all manner of ranch equipment, with fowl and livestock were swept away by the waters.

With only the flash of a short-circuited high-power line to serve as a warning to the hundreds who lived in cabins and ranch houses the length of the valley, a great unbridled wave estimated to have been 75 feet high rushed furiously toward the sea. Nothing stood before it.

Mountain cabins, ranch homes, a city power plant and, it is believed, a loaded city inhabited by 75 or more Southern California Edison Company workmen were carried away.

The bodies that lay in an improvised morgue at Saugus, near Newhall, represented in the opinion of William Bright, chief of the county sheriff's rescue squad, only a small percentage of those that died in the tremendous gorges of the loosed flood.

A list of human tragedies that ended in disaster was present when an Associated Press staff correspondent, mentioning that the flood, before dawn had mounted over the great peak of the mountains.

Here a woman, hysterically wringing her hands, and down the road a man, a pitiful figure, clutching a baby, and down the road a man, a pitiful figure, clutching a baby.

When the flash of the short-circuited high power line at the dam threw its glacially warning light to the eastward, one man, so far as it was known, seized the coming disaster. He was Dr. C. C. Ashley, owner of a sanatorium at Saugus. He ordered all his patients to be ready and to prepare to render aid.

The break, which occurred about 1 p. m., unleashed the flood at high speed, and in three hours it was more than 20 miles down the canyon.

One out of the San Francisco canyon, the flood swept out between the steep banks of the Santa Paula river, which held the volume.

It cut a power line of the Southern California Edison Company running into Santa Barbara, washed out a Southern Pacific branch line and bore down upon the town left at the foot of the Santa Paula.

Below there could be estimated that it might strike the old field at Ventura.

Saugus, Mass., Men Founded Two of Flooded Towns

Saugus, March 13 (AP)—Newhall and Saugus, two of the towns swept by the California flood today, were founded by two brothers from this town and named their names from their founders and the Massachusetts community from which they set out for the West.

Sixty years ago Henry Newhall and his brother, Manfield, natives of Saugus, started for California. They settled in the San Francisco Valley, where they attained considerable wealth. One of the two communities they established they gave the name of their native town and upon the other they bestowed the family name.

One of these had a chance for his life.

Five persons who came through the ordeal by joining hands, formed a human chain and being carried to safety by the water giant side it had taken them from their beds, were the only survivors reported in first advice. They included R. W. Hunkle, his father, Charles, another rancher named Hunkle, his wife and father. All lived a mile north of Saugus, a considerable distance from the dam.

A 12-year-old girl and baby were reported to have been swept away at the Hunkle place. Hunkle reported his uncle and sister, whose names were not given, as missing.

PLEE FROM TOWN

Advice from Oxnard declared that the residents of that section, hearing of the breach in the dam, were moving to safety by the water giant side it had taken them from their beds.

The St. Francis dam held back the waters of the Los Angeles aqueduct in the narrow gorge through which San Francisco's canyon creek also runs.

The Edison company's substation at Ventura, near the confluence of the creek and the river, was put out of commission by the surging

ENGINEER WHO INSPECTED DAM LEADS PROBE

Berkeley, Cal., March 13 (AP)—An investigation of the collapse of the St. Francis dam will be headed by Edward Hyatt, State engineer, tomorrow morning, Hyatt declared as he left for Newhall today.

"I inspected the dam myself during construction," Hyatt said, "and I can't understand how a gravity concrete structure of that type would collapse unless it was struck by some unusual disturbance."

"Reports of the amount of water in the dam vary, but the greatest amount reported would indicate the dam was one-third full."

Hyatt and W. A. Perkins, deputy State engineer, expect to reach Newhall soon after midnight tonight.

Troops will be rushed to the Newhall flood district if found necessary, State officials said.

The dam and the concrete power line running into Santa Barbara, located to safety by the water giant side it had taken them from their beds, were the only survivors reported in first advice.

Between 500 and 600 men and their families were rushed into the district early to preserve order and aid in rescue work.

Said from the loss of time, the collapse of the St. Francis dam crippled an important life in the city of Los Angeles water system and released a big wall of water accumulated through the dam for summer use.

One powerhouse dependent on the dam went out of commission, too, along the scenic ride route through Southern California was reported.

Advice of the Southern Pacific road were washed out and many lives were expected in the vine groves and small farms of the area.

The Southern California Edison Power company announced that the power line of the company later in the day was in Reno for any other purpose, and I did so hope I could

100 BURIED IN CANYON SAND, IS BELIEF

Newhall, Cal., March 13 (AP)—San Francisco's canyon yesterday one of the most beautiful in this section of the country, today was buried under a layer of yellowish sand, ranging from a few inches to thirty feet in depth.

Citrus groves and small ranches were in ruins.

When the water hit the Ridge Road highway away down the canyon, 17 or 18 miles south of the dam, it was still going great guns. They told me it hit across the highway more than 20 feet high and struck the Catalina power house of the Southern California Edison company and just wiped it out.

GEORGE F. BUTTERWORTH, LAW SPECIALIST, DEAD

New York, March 13 (AP)—Green Forest, Butterworth, a specialist in real property law, died at the age of 75 in Roosevelt hospital today following an operation. He was a member of the firm of Calverley, Wickham & Tappan.

He was the director of the Newark (N.J.) hospital, and identified with other public services in New York, where he had a summer home.

Los Angeles, March 13 (INS)—Blinding flashes from high-power electric lines thrown to his ground and put out of commission by the flood from the St. Francis dam came as the first warning to people in the valley below that "something had happened."

Ben Lewis, employee at Wood's Garage, in Saugus, told today the story of how the first word of the coming of the dam came.

"I saw those flashes and knew something had happened but I didn't know what," Lewis said.

"The flashes kept going on and off for about an hour and an employee of the Southern California Edison placed the total number of dwellers in the canyon at a little more than 500."

FIND TWO BODIES

"I happened to Los Angeles and then I went out with him and saw the first body to be found. I found the first two bodies."

"They were young fellows. Neither had a stitch of clothes on. Looked just like they'd been in bed and never knew what hit them."

"Some farmers told us that it seemed that the water came in a wall about 75 feet high with a roar like a thunderstorm."

"Everybody up here thought the water was coming from the north when it built."

"After what was going below the dam was swept clean, I never saw the face of it. However, took telephone poles, barns, haystacks—everything was swept away, and it looked like the bed of a big river when the water began to go down."

"The two bodies I found were in a cow's backwash. That's probably the only reason they didn't go down, but they did."

"When the water hit the Ridge Road highway away down the canyon, 17 or 18 miles south of the dam, it was still going great guns. They told me it hit across the highway more than 20 feet high and struck the Catalina power house of the Southern California Edison company and just wiped it out."

TUCK PROTESTS TWO-MAN RULE IN COMMITTEE

Mr. Tuck, against the "hand-picked" slate for delegates to the Democratic presidential convention, announced by Charles H. McGee and Charles R. Jordan, chairman and treasurer, respectively, of the Democratic state committee, today broke out in open rebellion.

Whitford Tuck of Winchester, member of the state committee, in a statement issued, protested against the "two-man rule" and demanded both McGee and Jordan for not submitting the slate for the approval of the state committee as a whole.

"Without attempting to throw a monkey-wrench into the machinery, or to run an opposition slate against the hand-picked group about to be placed before the Democrats of the state," said Tuck, "I have a few things I would like to say because so many Democrats throughout the state have applied to me to express their beliefs."

"No meeting of the state committee was called to consider the question of delegates as other states have done. Nor was the committee called upon to endorse the selections which have been made. I feel that many able and prominent Democrats of the state have been slighted."

Tuck mentioned such names as Mayor Charles Ashley of New Bedford, Humphrey O'Sullivan of Lowell, Sherman L. Whipple, Hon. Please Turn to Page 2, Column 2.

WOMAN CLAIMS HAIR BURNED; ASKS $2000

Middlesex superior Civil Court became the setting for a hair-dressing scene today, and Judge James H. Sisk and 12 male members of a jury were given a demonstration in the art of the permanent wave.

The occasion was trial of a damage suit brought by Anna Hoke against Mrs. Ethel Miller, a Cambridge hairdresser. The plaintiff claims her hair was burned by Mrs. Miller during the process of a permanent wave and that some of her hair was destroyed and fell out. She sues for $2000.

A beauty parlor scene was enacted by the defense, with Mrs. Miller fitting the spindles and tubes of the permanent wave machine upon the head of Miss Nora Connolly of 135 Huntington ave., her assistant in the shop.

The machine was set up beside the bench, and Mrs. Connolly occupied the witness stand. Mrs. Miller demonstrated the use of the machine to substantiate her claim that it was impossible to burn the hair during the process. The actual wave itself was not given.

During the demonstration Judge Sisk leaned over the bench, lit a cigarette in his hand, and the jury created its own selective law, the law to the proceedings. When it was over, Mrs. Connolly was held in her seat, the spindles on her head, for cross-examination. Judge Sisk ordered her removed from the stand.

Ton trial is still in progress.

BOSTON AMERICAN

BOSTON, TUESDAY, MARCH 13, 1928

MEINS ATTACKS DAY BAKER ON GAS TAX

An attack on Day Baker, lobbyist, and a refutation of the Baker contention that the proposed 2-cent gas tax bill with 70 per cent decrease in registration fees would mean an added cost of $6.41 for each motorist, was made today at a hearing before the House ways and means committee by Rep. Carroll L. Meins of Boston.

Meins introduced comparative figures showing that the gas tax bill will produce $12,293,264 as against $11,116,446 under the present system.

"Mr. Baker's comparative figures are as involved and inaccurate as his usual presentation of cases before the committee of the Legislature," he said. "He has compared what he says are actual receipts in the year 1927 with what he estimates to be receipts for two years hence in 1929, and as far as I know is the only one who does not agree with the actual figures presented to the committee by the department of public works."

"Another assertion by Baker to the effect that a collection charge of 1 cent a gallon will be added by the gasoline manufacturers," Meins said, "is in my judgment without foundation."

The speaker pointed out that the new method taxes users of the highways in the proportion they use them, the most equitable method.

BURGLAR WHO 'CAN'T REFORM' GETS 12 YEARS

A man who "simply cannot help breaking and entering" and who never carried gun, blackjack or other weapon of violence was sentenced to serve 12 to 20 years in State Prison today after the most unusual plea for leniency ever heard in Superior Court.

The unique offender is Benjamin May, 45, who was carrying a bag of tools when arrested. He pleaded guilty and when asked by Judge Fodick what he had to say for himself, replied:

"I am not here because I like to live a dishonest life."

"How is that?" asked the judge.

"I don't like dishonesty any more than you do," answered the prisoner. "Why it has meant years of wasted life to me, years of misery. But it is my fate. I know I ought to try hard to keep right with the law but I know too, that it's my fate not to do so."

Judge Fodick admitted to May that he was impressed by his attitude, but explained that a long term was mandatory.

"I want you to know, May, that what I am doing is not actuated by any venal spirit," he said. "I have to lock you up for a long time. You simply cannot help breaking and entering as soon as you get out of jail you go right at it again. We have to put you where you cannot do so."

AIKEN SOCIETY COLONY GATHERS ABOUT TANBARK RING THIS WEEK

Betty Alden Notes New England Folk Attending Late Winter Horse Show

(Special Dispatch to the Boston Evening American)
AIKEN, N. C., MARCH 13.—IT COMES ALONG QUITE NATURALLY that such a "horsey" set as bounds about Aiken and Augusta should stage an annual horse show. And an extremely high-class show. Of course, Southerners of place and pride have been interested in and owned fine horseflesh for many a year. To have blue ribbons and thoroughbreds in the stable is a family fad down below the Mason and Dixon line. And when society from the North flock South Carolina, bringing its high stoppers along, there's fine enough material for a horse show that even a Madison Square Garden might well envy.

THE SHOW IS ON THIS WEEK. SOCIETY WILL TEMPORARILY, oh very temporarily, desert from its miles of cross-country riding, its hunting and its polo. It will gather about the tanbark ring in the horseshow grounds out on the Wrightshoro rd., and watch the "five-gallop" mounts, the hunters, the jumpers and the polo ponies go through their paces. To your true blue horse lover, there is no greater sight than a high-spirited, mettlesome horse matching about a ring or taking the jump like a bird.

HAPPILY FOR THE CAUSE OF GOOD JUDGING, HARRY WESTER SMITH, noted gentleman horseman of Boston and Worcester, will pass on the merits of hunters and jumpers, along with another noted horseman, Rigan McKinnay, of Aiken and Cleveland. Both men know exactly what they are doing when it comes to equine blood and points. Mr. McKinnay is a guest at the Bonnet-Vanderbilt in Augusta, and will have several entries in the show. His "Sky Line Tommy" is a favorite likely to romp over the bars with ease and perfect form, since he is known as the highest jumper in the country.

ALSO, HAPPILY FOR ALL CONCERNED, THE ENTRIES COMMITTEE rejoices in having Captain Wydenbruck Lee in its circle. Captain Lee has formerly from Vienna, Austria; more recently from New York; and at the moment is in Aiken. And quite an element too, is this brilliant horseman. He owns horses and exhibits them; and has done the latter in practically every country of the Eastern Hemisphere. And as for polo, he has swung a stiff mallet wherever polo is played, North of the "Line" and South of it. So on the entries committee at Augusta he is singularly well placed.

I SAW MISS BETTY BARRELL, PRETTY DAUGHTER OF MRS. AUGUSTUS F. GOODWIN of Hamilton, Boston and Aiken, stop a shining coach watching the polo on a suburban Aiken afternoon. To see a coach and four is an art not possessed by the many. But even so many of that "many" appear to be in Aiken. Feminine drivers who can manipulate the ribbons over a swanking four are almost as numerous as the masculines equally expert in that line. And when Miss Barrell was atop the coach Mrs. Joseph Milne was driving expertly as could be.

WEEDS AND WOOLENS ARE THE THING AT AIKEN. AND sure come not unlike when Old Rod is temporarily behind a cloud. When I saw Miss Barrell on the aforementioned coach she was wearing a cloth wrap with soft, warm stole collar, and a close felt hat of with a tiny rippled brim. Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church were equally well fortified for the scene and the air, the one in an enormous muffling tan coat, and the other in white with flat ermine collar and cuffs.

MRS. CHURCH'S INTEREST IN FINE HORSEFLESH IS THE SORT that has pride of ownership. At her summer place in Newport, the ample lawn seems made to provide "schooling" space for the speedy steed Mrs. Church herself drives with such expert ease. Mr. and Mrs. Church will be a month or more in Aiken, according to present plans. Aiken, halfway tarrying place for those bound North from the tropics to New York, is mighty popular just now.

THOSE TWO ATTRACTIVE slaters who flit about in the social picture, to its great adornment, are at Aiken. I mean the Misses Helen and Florence Mitchell, now doing an Aiken interlude after the thousand diversions of Palm Beach. Next on their social itineraries will come spring, in Philadelphia, and then Newport. Both Miss Helen and Miss Florence are extremely attractive young women. In whatever social center they linger, then is that spot alive with their always smart and always booming costumes.

Mrs. Sophy Wheeler Crosby of Boston was found lying in her husband's hotel room last week. The dead later and death was attributed to poison.

JAPANESE PRINCESS'

BODY IS LAID AT REST

Tokio, March 13 (ENB)—With the simplest of ceremonies, the body of Princess Ilim, six-month-old daughter of Emperor Hirohito, today was laid to rest in the imperial cemetery at Tama. The Emperor, Empress and other members of the imperial family at the Aikawa Palace attended funeral services. But the Emperor and Empress did not accompany the cortege to the cemetery.

All primary schools, most of the business and many of the public houses in Japan were closed as a mark of respect for the Princess.

HOOVER SURE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE DELEGATES

Concord, N. H., March 13 (AP)—The names and fortunes of Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith loomed large in today's state-wide election of delegates to the national convention of their respective parties.

The Hoover camp was certain almost unanimous endorsement of the Republican ticket. The Smith camp was equally certain of its endorsement of the Democratic ticket.

But if the delegates have endorsed Hoover there has been no such unanimity within party ranks, and to day Republican voting held more in view the forces of U. S. Senator George H. Moses and Governor Stanley N. Brannan on the one hand and those of former Governor John G. Winant on the other.

Each side had two complete tickets in the field and each was confident of obtaining control of the delegation to the Kansas City convention.

Gov. Smith's chances of endorsement lay in the election of the voters to the seven Smith-pledged delegates. An eighth delegate favored the New York Governor leaving only four of the 12 candidates for the six places in a doubtful struggle.

Proponents of Governor Smith gave the possibility that a complete Smith slate might be elected.

The presidential primaries were being held in connection with annual town meetings and city elections in various parts of the state. Cities to elect included Laconia, Berlin and Dover.

Some well meaning men will call that socialism, or worse. They would view with horror the abolition of a great working class, producing just enough for the rich, with unemployment as soon as the prosperous got all they needed.

In Europe only the rich have the automobiles. Here 14,000,000 cars are used.

Our industrial genius has accomplished that: high wages, low prices, high quality go together.

That combination would have been called impossible a few years ago.

TWO RESCUED IN $15,000 FIRE IN WEST END

There in the basement, and then rescued the cashbox, with which she made her way to the street.

The fire started from an undetermined cause on the rear stairs between the second and third floors, and in a short time had eaten its way into the vanishing and refueling rooms on the third floor, cutting off the escape of Dool and his wife.

Finding the stairway a mass of flames, the two surprised climbed through a window and managed to hold on until help arrived.

Because of the location of the building, in a congested business section, a second alarm was turned in. Despite the fact that the flames fed on varnish and other highly inflammable material, the firemen succeeded in getting the upper head within ten minutes of their arrival.

A fire wall separated the building from that at No. 11 Portland st., on the first floor of which is located the animal store of Long Bros., containing some 200 rabbits, dogs and other pets. At the request of the proprietors and Asst. Fire Chief Baze a detail of police was stationed at the door to remove the animal in case the flames spread.

somehow linked with two other shootings within the last year and involving a certain small group of Chelsea men.

DeVito, although wounded seriously, will recover, according to doctors at Chelsea Memorial hospital. Police will question him as soon as possible.

Campana roomed on the second floor of the house above the barbershop and DeVito lives with his family on the floor above. When the police entered last night a small table with cards on it was found in rear room.

Two small boys notified the police of the shooting. Inspector Charles Tremblay and Special Officer Herbert Hamersley were assigned to the case. The inspector took for examination a .25-caliber steel jacketed bullet that was taken from DeVito's shoulder and Hamersley found a .25-caliber lead-jacketed bullet on the floor of the shop.

late today however, failed to bring any information concerning her whereabouts.

A plane believed to be "The Adventure," was reported this afternoon over Miami Beach, Ireland, flying in a westerly direction. Hinchliffe is in the southern part of Ireland and about 400 miles from Miami Beach.

The Evening News says that before leaving Cranwell Capt. Walter Hinchliffe left this message: "I am starting out from Cranwell on an attempt to fly the Atlantic."

Hinchliffe started with fuel sufficient for a 30-hour flight. He had been informed before starting that weather conditions at sea were "fairly good."

Hinchliffe Sends Cable to New York Announcing Start

New York, March 13 (AP)—John Gillespie, press representative in this country for Capt. Walter Hinchliffe, made public a cable today which he said established that the Britisher was on his way along the northern western air passage to America.

The cable, filed in London at 8:45 this morning, read: "For purpose of saving you, I am flying 24-25, details later."

It was signed Lloyd Bradshaw, a name unfamiliar to Gillespie. Gillespie said: "I am bound to come a bit earlier, but there was an interruption of some sort and he had to wait."

"This purpose is to achieve the western passage, a feat never yet accomplished, and he has made no definite decision on a landing place. But if he has plenty of fuel left when he gets to Newfoundland he may come on to New York or go through to Philadelphia."

You know there is a $25,000 prize waiting for him if he should land at Philadelphia. The offer was offered by a newspaper last summer and later withdrawn, but it has been reinstated and if Capt. Hinchliffe should do better he would win the prize, but the prize is not in cash.

"A smooth lovely skin is always important for a girl but a star has to have the smoothest skin in the world—make-up shows so in the close-up under the bright blazing lights. I keep my skin like satin by using Lux Toilet Soap."

Nora Reynolds

Smooth skin essential—a statement representative of leading directors

"The most appealing single beauty a girl can have is certainly exquisitely lovely skin. A screen star, to survive the merciless lights of the close up that permit of practically no make-up, must have rarely, beautiful skin—"studio skin". The beauty of her skin distinguishes every star I know."

90 MILLION FIRE LOSS AIDED BY SMOKING

"Smoking and carelessness" cost more than $90,000,000 of the $243,000,000 loss the nation suffered by fire in 1926, a record-breaking year in this respect, and New England was informed today by Edward T. Cairns, Boston insurance man, during their one-day annual conference.

Speaking to the credit men at the Chamber of Commerce, Cairns, who is vice-president of the Firemen's Fund Insurance Company, pointed out a close relation between business credit and fire hazards and asked for cooperation in eliminating fire waste.

"It is far the greater part of this fire loss of $9 per capita was preventable," he said. "Business men must work in support of all efforts to prevent fires."

A plea for co-operation among business men to make their cities more attractive for the investment of new capital in industrial enterprises was made by Charles E. Hildreth, executive officer of the Worcester Chamber of Commerce.

Speaker John C. Hall of the House of Representatives, Mayor Nicholas Boston, Credit Men's Association made addresses of welcome. Former Governor Canning H. Cox, vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, described New England "as it really is. There will be a banquet this evening."

Fire Prevention Drive Started in West End

A joint fire and police department crusade for the elimination of fire hazards in the congested tenement section of the West End is under way.

The conditions already revealed are said to constitute the gravest menace, and proprietors of five places have been given 10 days in which to clean up.

The work is being carried on by the fire department, and Inspector Joseph H. Haggard, private investigator for superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley.

It resulted from a conference held by Fire Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman with Supt. A. J. Caulfield of the fire prevention division, following two fires in two weeks in the West End, originating in rags and paper stock. In one of these fires three of six children were endangered.

The investigators have learned that there are at least 100 rag shops with headwaters in Chelsea, but where picking and sorting is done in the West End. Rags, rubber tires, paper and other inflammable materials constitute fire hazards, and their possession in quantity without a permit is a violation of a statute.

Why it is important to filter the oil in your engine

The AC Oil Filter removes the dirt, sludge, metal particles and other foreign matter from the oil, thereby eliminating excessive engine wear and frequent oil changing, thus minimizing repair bills and oil expense.

When the oil filter becomes filled with dirt it has taken from the oil, it ceases to function. Only by installing a renewal cartridge when needed, insuring continuous filtration, can the oil be kept clean.

Attendees at our booth, or any dealer, will gladly show you how to test your AC Oil Filter.

managers and crew of the Robert E. Lee.

Straw's wife, who contributed to this paper with the request that the gift be listed as anonymous, but when informed that the use of his name would help the fund, agreed that it be made public.

Governor Fuller's name was among the list of donors who had honored in some fashion or other the memory of the crew who died in the sinking of the ship.

The governor, at the suggestion of the Boston Evening American, assigned three members of his personal staff to attend the funeral of the brave seafarers and in addition sent a floral tribute to the home of the crew.

Straw's consent to the use of his name was conveyed in a telegram to E. R. May, managing editor of the paper. The philanthropist wired: "I thank you sincerely for the able manner in which you have handled the fund which I sent. This is satisfactory to me. The families of heroes like these three men, who have sacrificed their lives, should be provided for by the millions who continually cross the ocean. I am sure that with your influence you will be able to raise a large fund. If you think it will help the cause, you are at liberty to use my name now."

The Boston Evening American will be glad to receive contributions for the list of the dead coast guardsmen, whose courage and sacrifice were a credit to the nation.

Straw's gift was promptly followed by a contribution of $100 from Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Keady of Scituate, who, with their daughter, Irene, were on the steamship Robert E. Lee.

Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, at the suggestion of the Boston Evening American, introduced an order that both branches of the Legislature appoint committees to attend the funeral of the coast guardsmen.

Two of the victims will be buried tomorrow. The United States Coast Guard will assign firing squads. At the request of the Coast Guard, Rear Admiral Andrews, commandant of Boston navy yard, has assigned the navy yard band to attend the funeral of William H. Cushman, acting captain of Manomet Coast Guard station.

A high mass of requiem will be celebrated for Cushman in the Star of the Sea Church in East Boston at 2 a. m. tomorrow.

He will be given a military funeral attended by uniformed officers and men of the Coast Guard service. Cushman was a brother of State Senator John E. Cushman.

Frank W. Griswold will be buried from First Congregational Church in Manomet at 2 p. m. tomorrow. He will also be given a military funeral. Similar honors will be shown Edward P. Stark in Taunton on Thursday. Funeral services for Stark will be held in Winslow Congregational Church.

A letter to the Boston Evening American from Richard Stark, brother of the Taunton hero, expresses his gratitude and that of his family for all that is being done for the dependents of the martyrs.

TUCK PROTESTS PARTY SLATE

Joseph H. O'Neil, former Mayor Sullivan of Worcester, Gen. Edward L. Logan and Mrs. John J. Gerry of Woburn.

"As far as I have been able to find out," he continued, "the only members of the State committee who had anything to do with the naming of the slate were Charles H. McGinnis, Mrs. Colin W. Donald and Charles Riddan.

Another point made against the selection by Tuck was that most of the slate is "west."

"I believe that the voters of the state as a whole are dry," he said. "It was a tactical blunder not to give the dry representation."

"One other thing I might add. I do not wish to be critical of Senator Walsh, but the fact remains that both United States Senators in New York waived their right to places on the at-large slate, taking the position that this honor should go to the rank and file workers."

"They wanted to give the brown derby democracy a chance."

MOTHER AWAITS DEATH LETTER OF GLEASON

Herbert Gleason, who died in the electric chair early today with a prayer for forgiveness upon his lips, will be buried in Calvary Cemetery Thursday from the Bessie Sacramento Church, Jamaica Plain.

The last letters which he wrote to his mother and father shortly before the death march began will reportedly not reach his parents until tomorrow.

Mrs. Anna Gleason, his mother, was on the verge of a breakdown at 75 Sheridan St., Jamaica Plain, today. With her husband, her daughter Anna and her son Joseph, she spent a sleepless night, weeping continually.

Gleason's last words to his mother were: "Don't worry. Goodbye. I will write to you a last letter," she revealed. "To that last letter she is anxiously looking forward. I cannot realize he is dead," she sobbed.

The body of the Jamaica Plain youth, who walked to his death with out guards, his eyes set upon a cross held aloft by the prison chaplain, rested in the North Grove at morgue during the day and was to be turned over to an undertaker this evening.

GRILL BUTLER, MELLON, HAYS ON OIL BONDS

G. O. P. CHIEF AND TREASURY HEAD SPURNED OFFERS

batch turned over by Sinclair to Hays to help wipe out the 1929 campaign deficit.

Hays indicated that, inasmuch as neither Mellon nor Butler had accepted the bonds, he felt there was no reason for disclosing the transaction.

"BRIBERY."
"If you attempted to bribe a public official with such bonds and for rejected you," Hays was asked by Senator Walsh of Montana, committee member, "would you admit that should be disclosed?"

"That's an unfair question," Hays shot back with heat.

Hays indicated his dealings with Mellon and Butler could not be put on that basis.

Hays, former postmaster-general, told the committee he had had a lot of money dealing in Sinclair Consolidated Oil Co. stock.

Hays said he had been bought and sold the stock of the company in which Sinclair, the son of T. Boone, is heavily interested, about 1923.

SAYS KLAN GOT CASH.
Senator Walsh told that he had information from what appeared to be a reliable source that Edward V. Clarke of Atlanta, Ga., treasurer of the Ku Klux Klan in 1926, had received $100,000 from the Republican National Committee.

"That could not be true," Hays said, adding, "Who is Clarke?"

"He was one of the chief officers of the Ku Klux Klan in 1926," Hays said.

"I have been sensitive in this matter, and I resent statements like that regarding the 1926 campaign going into the record," Hays said.

"Where did you get that information?"

"Perhaps that will be laid before the committee later," Walsh replied, adding, "My motives have been improved before by estimable gentlemen."

Questioned mercilessly during two hours on the witness stand, Mellon, who had been Secretary of the Treasury since the beginning of the Harding administration, replied that he also had kept quiet these last four years because he could not see how any good purpose could be served by disclosing that Hays had approached him.

Mellon said he understood the $100,000 in bonds tendered him by the then party chairman came from Sinclair.

Butler, now Republican national chairman, testified he did not know the source of the $100,000 in bonds Hays sought to give him in exchange for a "contribution" of the amount to the national committee. Each thought the purpose was to prevent the record from showing the whole bond contribution came from one source.

BUTLER ON STAND.
Pondering the committee table and raising his piercing voice as he replied to his inquirers, Hays declared he took full responsibility for having asked Sinclair to contribute and for the methods he subsequently adopted to get the $100,000 of Sinclair bonds out of the treasury's charge.

When Sinclair made the contribution, Hays said he knew nothing of the Continental Trading Co. and the $100,000 profit it piled up and disbursed mysteriously after Teapot Dome was leased to Sinclair.

"I take the responsibility of soliciting Mr. Sinclair," Hays said.

Hays said he was willing to step before the committee for a week if necessary. He elapsed the table to emphasize his remarks.

Walsh spoke of the "moral and ethical aspect of the matter."

"There was never any time when I lost sight of the obligation to Mr. Sinclair to return as much as we had taken from him," Hays said.

"I explained why you did not go to Mr. Mellon and ask him to make a contribution?"

"I said the security and I sent him the bonds to induce him to make a contribution. It was the plan to raise the money and get the bonds back," the committee member said.

"Why did you have to give Mr. Mellon security?"

"I induced him to make a loan, and it worked," Hays added, and again.

GOES TO HAYS.
Walsh drew from Hays the information that Sinclair returned to him $85,000 Hays had sent back to the oil operator after the Teapot Dome had come under attack.

"What was said when Sinclair returned the securities?" Hays was asked.

"He sent them to me, Senator, he sent them to me," Hays said.

"Through a friend, James P. Connery, of Chicago?"

"That was understandable in any way to handle any other of the Sinclair bonds," asked Senator Bratton.

"No, I cannot recall anything more," Hays said.

Chairman Nye asked Hays about his dealings in Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company stock.

"I bought a good deal and sold and lost a lot of money."

"When were the greatest purchases made?"

"About 1923."

"Are you acquainted with Ned McLean?"

"I know Mr. Ned McLean."

"Ever have any business or political relations with him?"

"No."

The reference was to Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post.

As the examination of Hays proceeded to the accompaniment of frequent personal attacks, it became manifest that Walsh was seeking to draw a contrast between Hays' sworn testimony on previous occasions and that of today.

HAYS TANGLED UP.
The prosecutor went back to March 22, 1924, when Hays told the committee Sinclair could not possibly have given the party fund more than $75,000 in a certain kind of bonds. Then the record of the witness' testimony on March 1 was produced.

Hays protested and argued, and Walsh replied so vigorously that once his eyes began to roll off. Denying his contradictory testimony and asserting that he had been talking about one thing and Walsh another, Hays finally got up out of his chair to emphasize his protest.

"Sit down, sit down," said Walsh. The witness did, hurriedly.

Taking up Hays' testimony of March 1, when he revealed for the first time that Sinclair gave him a total of $200,000 in Liberty bonds, Walsh asked:

"Do you care to comment on the testimony?"

"Well, I said I handled the fund and I did. I said I thought that the $75,000 went to the Executive Trust Company, and it did."

"Now, let's get out of technical, Senator," Hays said, and the crowd roared.

Walsh read part of the 1924 testimony, in which Hays said the Sinclair gift of $75,000 was not made to him. Only a few days ago Hays testified he solicited Sinclair and received the bonds from Sinclair himself.

"Do you want to explain that?" Hays hesitated. Then he said:

"I did not regard the delivery of those bonds as payment until it was determined what disposition was to be made of them."

"THINKS IT'S HONEST."
Walsh called attention that in late 1922 the Continental Trading Co. got four packages of Liberty bonds containing $85,000 each; that Sinclair eventually gave the National Committee $85,000; that $100 was the amount of a William Roger Thompson loan and that $85,000 was the total of the bonds Hays passed to the Republican Committee.

"Do you know anything about that?" Hays replied. "The coincidence is rather remarkable," Walsh said. "No, it's not a coincidence; it is an imagination," Hays retorted. "Do you associate the delivery of these bonds by Sinclair with the Teapot Dome transaction?" Walsh asked of Sinclair, and Hays set out to give his views about political financing but Walsh halted him. The Montanan had the question re-read.

Reed Flays Mellon, Hays for 'Boodle'

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 13 (AP)—Corruption among politicians and high governmental officials is directly traceable to centralization of power in the federal government, U. S. Senator James A. Reed said today in a speech before a joint session of the Kentucky Legislature.

Daugherty said the Harding administration in advance. "The Secretary of the Treasury organized the boodle campaign of Pennsylvania, to the slush fund of which a single Pennsylvania manufacturer contributed substantially $100,000, and Will Hays, who protects the public morals by censoring the pictures, is now engaged in explaining or dodging explanations regarding bonds received from Sinclair."

"Do you see any reason why anyone should have thought you wouldn't make a subscription without it being secured by bonds?"

"No, I felt a little ashamed of it."

"Why was it in the Cabinet and not doing any share for the party?"

"What did you say to Mr. Hays about bonds?"

"I naturally suggested that he sell the bonds and use the money."

"I objected to doing so because I was a member of the national committee."

"I told him I would make a bond side subscription and that I had expected to make a subscription as I felt I was obliged to make one."

"I told him I would make one for $25,000. About that time I sent a check to the treasurer, Mr. Upham, at Chicago, for $25,000."

"As I said in my letter to you Saturday, I received only $25,000 from the Harding campaign."

"In the course of the campaign, Mr. Hays called me on the phone from New York and asked me to invite some people to a luncheon and that he and William Boyce Thompson would explain the financing."

"WHAT HAYS SAID."

"He said subscriptions were to be limited to $2500 to $1000 before the convention and $1000 after the convention. I had no thought then of entering public office."

"Mellon explained that he saw Hays there and was given $100,000 for the Pittsburgh district. He formed an organization, he said, and the quota was over-subscribed."

"It was all done consistently with that plan. I subscribed $25,000 as did my brother and my nephew."

"As he talked the secretary sat far forward in his chair with his fingers on the table. Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, a personal friend of Hays, said:

"What explanation did Hays make about the $100,000 he came from?"

"He said he had a large amount. It was to me it was about $250,000. It is difficult to remember details now. He wanted to use them so that there would not be one large subscription to the party."

"Did Hays tell you where he got the bonds?"

"No, from Sinclair," said the Secretary as he moved back in his chair.

"What did you understand to be the deficit at that time?"

"It was not very clear, but it was in excess of $1,000,000."

"Did any of your banks make any loan to the Republican National Committee?"

"No. That subscription from Sinclair I looked upon as without significance. I had no knowledge of his large brooding. Regarding the matter you see, that was in Trenton, N. J., in the winter of 1923."

"The file of the Walsh-Mellon letters was complete with the exchange of the Secretary, when the disclosed for the first time that Hays had sent $50,000 of Sinclair bonds to him for use for political purposes."

"To whom did you convey the information that you would make a contribution?"

"To Secretary Walsh," Mellon replied.

"Questioned by Chairman Nye, Mellon said three or four persons met him to discuss the cleaning up of the deficit, but Hays was not present."

"Was the matter of the Sinclair loan discussed at that meeting?"

"Oh, no. That was before the bonds were given."

"You knew that Sinclair was involved. Won't you tell us why you did not come forward sooner and tell the committee of the Sinclair bonds?"

"Well, would that have added any thing?" Mellon said.

"You had all the information and all that could have been added with my name. It was an incidental thing. What purpose would have been served by that? I could not have told about $250,000 in bonds."

"The bonds had been returned?"

"Mellon said: 'I never occurred to me that there was any reason for me to tell about it. I had no reason either with the Republican national committee or with Mr. Sinclair.'

"Hans? It occurred to you since that these probably were confidential bonds?"

"I had no more information on that than the committee had."

"Replying to Walsh, the Cabinet officer said Hays had told him he was making a similar bond transaction with the late Secretary Weeks. "I did not want to know if Hays had told him Sinclair had made the gift of bonds because he felt he owed the administration something because of the oil lease."

"It's not likely that anything like that was said," Mellon retorted.

"Let me call your attention that the taking of testimony in the trial of James Leavelle, in October, 1925, and this transaction you told of took place a month later," Walsh said.

"That may be," Mellon replied. "I can't follow all these investigations. I have trouble of my own and much work to do."

COMMON CHEAT GETS

JAIL TERM IN BOSTON

The first time in more than 40 years, the charge of being a common cheat was placed on a man in municipal court and Capt. Peter Oliver, holder of Massachusetts' record of a three months' sentence as the victim.

Capt. Oliver was found guilty of sending girls into the streets to collect for a "prize fund" to fight the National Origins Act.

No defense was put in by the captain, and he appeared the sentence. Then U. S. Deputy Marshal Joseph Wilton filed a warrant from Washington against the captain's release.

FAMOUS STUNT FLIER

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Brynston, N. Y., March 12 (AP)—The body of Arthur Houghtaling, 31, World War veteran and famous stunt flier, was found in his automobile on a side road outside Troy today, the local almost blown off by a shotgun charge. A note found in the car stated that he flier committed suicide Monday afternoon.

Houghtaling, widely known as a "stunt" and parachute jumper, with Clarence Chamberlin when the transatlantic flier was first breaking into the business.

Friends believed he was mentally deranged.

HOME SECTIONS SUFFER FROM LOAN CUT

Residential districts of Boston will be the sufferers through the action of the City Council in reducing Mayor Nichols' loan orders from $2,000,000 to $1,000,000, the mayor declared today.

The $2,000,000 allowed by the council for new streets and sewers will not be available for two weeks at least, Mayor Nichols pointed out, because 14 days must elapse between the first and second readings of loan orders in the council.

"The 1928 program of the street commissioners must now await action by the city council in the matter of laying out new streets in the residential sections," he said.

"Not one street can be laid out until the appropriation for the same is made available, although the money is not actually borrowed until when the payment is made."

"If the council makes available but $1,000,000, of course, the residential districts can only be given a small part of the street work I strongly recommend should be laid out this year."

STARR PARSONS WILL DEFEND READING

Attorneys of prominence will represent Atty.-Gen. Arthur K. Reading during the legislative investigation of his conduct in office, according to reports current today at the State House, where the investigating committee met in executive session.

It was originally announced that a flat wheel and a hot box would constitute first and second awards. The flat wheel stands but every time I tried to get a hot box up to the office I even got to hiring taxicabs but the darn thing would cool right off. Finally I decided to change the prize and went out and bought a perfectly stunning set of dynamite torpedoes such as Bill carries around in his lunch basket.

In case of a tie, with two or more contestants getting the right answer, no prize will be given and I will be so much in.

Just how far Bill actually traveled and at what speed—will be pointed in this paper next Saturday.

In the meantime you have a few hours in which to make your own deductions and get them in to the Brakeman Bill Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winter St., Boston.

Midnight Time Limit in Brakeman Puzzle

THE North Station warning siren blows at midnight tonight for the end of the period allowed for answers to the Brakeman Bill puzzle, which has provided mental exercise for innumerable puzzlers for the past 10 days.

No answers received bearing a postmark later than midnight tonight will be considered by this puzzle person in the award of prizes. The prizes, by the way, have been changed.

Do this first

The first thing to do before making any extensive repairs or adjustments is to have the ignition checked and the spark plugs looked over.

Many times expensive repair bills are incurred and it is afterwards found that all that was needed was a new set of spark plugs. This because sparkplugs in time deteriorate and need to be changed.

Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and other great flyers slaked their lives on AC Spark Plugs in their epoch-making flights.

DePaolo—1927 AAA championship racing driver—used AC Spark Plugs in every race.

Attend at our booth at the show, or any dealer, will gladly tell you the correct type and size recommended for your engine.

BIG DIVIDENDS BY R. H. WHITE

The business done by the R. H. White Company is evidenced by the 21.14 per cent stock dividend amounting to $1,000,000, in addition to a cash dividend, voted by the stockholders of the company.

This substantial distribution of money and stocks, while of wide general interest, is of particular interest to the stockholders of the latter embrace, not only the directors and managers, but employees.

The policy of R. H. White Company is that only those who are concerned with the management and daily work of the store can own stock. As a result the cash dividend, following many similar ones—and this big dividend goes to employees in every branch of the business from thirty, ambitious stock owners, salespeople, and assistants, to buyers and executives—opens the way for a still wider participation in the ownership of the business to those who are ready to take advantage of the opportunity.

First Pictures of Sharkey-Risko Bout ➤ Show How Cleveland Baker ➤ Kneaded Sharkey Out of Millions

Gene Bianco, the only defending champion of 1927, retained his 112-pound title when he defeated Paris Apice of Providence at the New England amateur boxing championships held at the Boston Arena.

The seven champs of last year all turned pro and seven new champs were crowned.

DESERT DAZES HUB RUNNER

New York, March 13 (AP)—"I thought I won. He was out on his first several times. His left hook came in and I slipped. I wasn't knocked down. Let's get out of here as fast as we can."

This was Sharkey's statement following his bout with Flisko.

Sharkey, bearing a cut similar to Rickard's, was seen in the coloreds of swigs in his room, from low punches, his me low several times," he said. "They didn't know I was slipping. They thought me step back and say this is when I should have been in there fighting. I shook him badly at times, but what could I do when he wouldn't open up? You can't knock out a man by hitting him on the elbow."

New York, March 15 (AP)—Risiko, a perfect match for "Iron-stom Tom" Heneey in lack of affection and simplicity, checked to himself the potency of Shaker during various stages of the fight at the garden.

"When he went down in the tenth, Shaker got up and said: 'Keep 'em up, you big boys! You'll get 'em and Risiko and he answered, 'But you're a bigger bum than I am.'"

Bullen and morose, fairly boiling with a pent-up rage, Shaker crossed rapidly after the fight and twice refused to discuss the situation to any extent.

BRAVES SHOWING PUNCH

Three Games Have Convinced Slats That the Tribe Can Sock Ole Apple

By NICK FIATLEY

St. Petersburg Fla., March 13.—One more day of baseballing will convince the slats that the Boston Braves have a whole of a punch. The club has plastered pitching now in three exhibition games and gets a fourth shot this afternoon, against the Washington Senators.

The club has suddenly discovered a slating attack which makes it a contender from the fact it keeps up. The boys smack the leather so frequently in slats that the general manager, Harry Frazar, has been forced to issue a warning. Frazar, who is a slats player, says that the slats are not to be used as a weapon. He says that the slats are to be used as a weapon. He says that the slats are to be used as a weapon.

Oosterbaan Wins More Athletic Honors

Chicago, March 12 (AP)—Rennie Oosterbaan of Michigan and Charles "Lefty" Oosterbaan of Michigan were unanimous choices of the 136 Ten coaches for forward and center in the compilation of all-conference players by the Associated Press today.

In a field of great players, Oosterbaan was the only one named forward, with only a few forwards pressing the tie-up from this mean for this year.

As a running mate for Oosterbaan, the selections were divided almost four forwards, with Yale of Indiana receiving the most votes. He also received a good, though fewer than Corvill of Indiana and Kemmer of Purdue.

Women's National Golf Champion

It is astonishing to note the evolution in women's clothes since the beginning of golf. On the national championship trophy is a miniature in enamel of a woman addressing the ball. What a sight she is!

The typical old-fashioned hour-glass figure, a waist only a few inches around, and skirts trailing the ground. No wonder they could not play golf in those days.

I remember when I first began to play golf. I felt that I was in order to play. I felt that I was in order to play. I felt that I was in order to play.

The Winthrop Golf Club has acquired the services of a most capable professional in Frank Mahan of Brookline. Frank comes from a family of golfers, being a brother of Tom, who is at Wald, and Jimmie, who, while at the Hour Glass C. C. at Windsor, Vt., was regarded as one of the greatest iron players in the game. In the old days there were few schoolboys capable of taking a fall out of Frank Mahan, and his opponents were comprised of such stars as Francis Ouimet, Dick Kimball, Bruce Evas, Kid Dresser and Tony Colombo.

Carrigan Crew Opens Two Weeks' Exhibition Campaign Against Minor Champs

By JOE CASHMAN

Palmetto, Fla., March 13.—The Red Sox open a two-week exhibition campaign of exhibition games today when they meet the Buffalo Bisons, international league champions in the second of a four-game series.

The first clash, played at St. Petersburg, Sunday, found the Sox on the long end of a 6-0 score, and the Sox boys are counting on making four in a row from the minor leagues. Which shows that the extent of the Fenway flock has changed considerably for the better in short space of twelve months.

NEW STRUT IN BOX

A year back, while railing at New Orleans the Sox had been making all at their ability, with the result that they lost to the Pelicans that season. The Sox are now making a new effort to win the Southern League open event to be held in St. Petersburg, Sunday, March 13.

They are talking about it all the while, and while they are looking forward to victory at the hands of the big league teams, such as the Pelicans, Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs.

The future isn't likely to prove as bright as they believe, but their morale appears strong enough to stand any vicissitudes that may come.

They have more confidence than any Red Sox team in years and for this reason, if for no other, they are likely to make a better fight than the American League team of last year's team which was often defeated before it started.

Unless they become disillusioned, which is inevitable, they will fight at the helm, to the Rockies will bring home the credit if Carrigan succeeds in clearing up the Sox, for the youngsters finished all the American League team, and all through today's contest as well as the next two, one at St. Petersburg and one at St. Petersburg, Sunday, 19 MEN ON HAND TODAY

Manager Carrigan is expected along 19 players for the tilt this afternoon, all of them Yankees except Fred Green and Ken Williams, who are of whom, if used at all, will not play more than three innings.

Lefty Williams and "Lefty" Seitzinger are down to the pitching machine, and Carrigan is expected to go to the mound to pitch the first three innings.

Should anything go wrong with the Sox, Carrigan will direct the team, and if Carrigan is not the man, Carrigan will direct the team, and if Carrigan is not the man, Carrigan will direct the team.

NEW YORK, March 13.—I found Mr. Boston sitting with a Tex Rickard during the preliminaries to the Sharkey-Rizzo bout at the Garden.

"I have just been checking up on the business of the Madison Square Garden Commission for the past year," said Rickard, "I find that the net profit of all our ventures has been $1,014,450. This was after we had paid out $400,000 for operation and carrying charges.

"This million dollar profit was earned from boxing bouts, horse races, track meets, a circus and the numerous other big attractions we staged last year.

"During the year we paid $3,000,000 to boxers. Tunney, Dempsey and Sharkey got the most of this money.

"These figures include the Dempsey-Sharkey bout which was staged at the Yankee stadium and the Dempsey-Tunney match which was held in Chicago. Both of these events were conducted by subsidiary organizations of Madison Square Garden Corporation.

"Last week the all-day race sold out every night. The same is true of all of the major attractions dropped in at the garden during the last season.

"The American public is looking for a thrill all of the time. Boxing, horse races, hockey and track meets produce this thrill.

"I am glad to hear that all obstacles for the erection of the new Madison Square Garden in Boston have been removed. Our arena in Boston will be larger and better than the one we have here. We have profited by the errors we have made in our New York garden.

"The Boston garden will have close to 100,000 seats, and will hold more than 14,000 seats for hockey games and track events. I have always had faith in Boston and believe the town is big enough to put over a garden of this size.

"The fans will find the Boston garden giving them the best service they could expect for the money.

"It is our plan to stage weekly boxing shows at our garden in Boston. I have not yet selected a matchmaker, but he will be a Boston man and will not make any mistake.

"The Boston garden will be close to the Boston station and will give the fans a fine view of the city.

"I figure I might as well pick up some good real estate bargains as I did not get into the big money until I started promoting boxing in New York under the Walker law.

"I topped a million dollars last fall when I sold a big crowd of my holdings in the garden. I bought stock at $5 and sold it at $24. When I got through selling, I had $700,000 in cash in the bank and enough stock to put the value of my holdings up to around $1,000,000.

"I am now looking for a little fun. I've worked hard all my life and I would be satisfied if I could now get a fair return on my investments.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Better pay for Boston public service.
3—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
4—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries by (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

Three Men of Manomet

WAS Their Sacrifice Necessary?

He is a poor son of Massachusetts whose heart is not stirred by the tale of daring and heroism which has been coming from Plymouth.

The men of the Coast Guard who set out from White Horse Beach Saturday morning in a 26-foot rowboat, to master the seemingly impassable mile of sea which surged between them and the Robert E. Lee, were every bit as big and brave as any who have faced the enemy's guns in war. Three of them are gone. Write their names with those of all the chivalrous great who have died that others might live:

WILLIAM H. CASHMAN, East Boston.
FRANK WESLEY GRISWOLD, Manomet.
EDWARD PARKER STARK, Taunton.

True to the traditions of the oldest branch of the Federal service, these were not found waiting when the test came. There were other heroes there, not all of them members of the Coast Guard. When the little skiff was ready for its 60.50 gamble with the sea it was found to be one man short of a complete crew. EDWARD DOUGLAS volunteered. All that we are told of Douglas is that he is a "garage mechanic."

Watchers on the shore saw the boat thrown from the water by a great wave and State Trooper JOHN HOBAN, HERBERT L. EDDY, "lobsterman," and DAN SULLIVAN, "a Manomet boy," put off to the rescue in a second rowboat, with only a single pair of oars!

What then died, pending proper recognition by Congress, is worth a letter from President Coolidge and another from Colonel Lindbergh, in the name of all their countrymen. The trooper, the lobsterman and the boy were "under no obligation" to risk their lives. This was none of their "business." THEY were "not being paid for it." Nor can they ever BE paid.

But while we live in the heroism of these men of Massachusetts let us not be blind to the lessons of the shipwreck. WHY did Cashman and his men have to put to sea in an open surfboat? Why was there no MOTORBOAT at Manomet Point Station? We read now and again of the "40-foot run-chasers" of the Coast Guard, why is not one of these kept at Manomet?

Reporters asked Captain Cashman that question. HIS answer was that there was "no place to house it."

No motorboat and no room for one, in a station heated by coal-stoves and lighted by oil-lamps!

No reservemen on hand to relieve Cashman and his men—to go to their aid when the surfboat was upset—although sufficient time had elapsed since the first 808 to muster a young army of reporters and photographers.

Something has been said about the failure of the steamship company to keep in Boston a complete list of the Lee's passengers. Attention has been called to the report that the Lee put out from this port in the face of northeasterly gale warnings. The question has been raised whether the coast is sufficiently provided with buoys and fog signals to permit the safest possible approach to the Cape canal.

These questions undoubtedly will be taken up by the proper agencies. We are not here concerned with them so much as with the urgent necessity of giving the brave men of the Coast Guard the equipment they should have and a square deal in other respects.

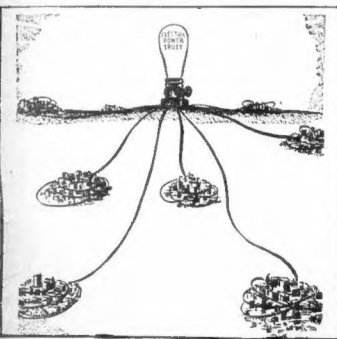

Manomet Point Station is a TRAINING station—with an equipment of two rowboats! ONE bigger, better, safer and more modern boat might have saved the lives of three brave men.

Newspaper headlines have paid terse tribute to the efficiency of the Coast Guard, to the valor of the men who came up from Sandwich as well as to those of Manomet, in "263 saved; 3 Coast Guards drowned."

"Greater love hath no man." Never again shall we see the surfman patrolling the beach, patient, steadfast and joyful, without a grateful thought of CASHMAN, GRISWOLD and STARK.

A New Octopus—1928 Model

This One Makes the Old Octopus Seem Trivial

THE GREAT POWER TRUST OCTOPUS

This little picture made by Mr. Fitzpatrick for the St. Louis Post Dispatch contains a great deal of meaning for the American people.

The Power Trust, with its intelligent thinking head in Wall Street, and sources of power, profit and industrial control centered all over the country, is a REAL OCTOPUS.

It would make the old eight-armed inhabitant of the sea, even the big kind, supposed to pull down ships, seem a very trivial little animal.

What a Difference a Few Years Make --

By FRANKLIN COLLIER

SOME THOUGHTS FOR LENTEN SEASON

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Lenten season is with us. It is the time of year when vast numbers of people will take an inventory of their spiritual furnishings.

There are many who lay no claim to spiritual life and do not regard themselves as especially spiritual, but there is no man exempt from the influence of the spiritualities.

It might be a good thing for every person to take advantage of this season to inquire into his motives.

Let him examine his deeds and wishes and see whether or not he stands four-square with his conscience.

There are many things we all do that may be correct according to the standards of these about it, but that would not be correct compared with our own standards of right and wrong.

Opportunity might be taken to clean one's life of suspected motives.

The story has been told of Horace Bushnell that one time while there was a revival at college he was considerably interested, but could get no idea of God. Finally, in his room, alone, he said to himself that while he could not understand this question of God he knew that if there were a God he was on the side of right, and he therefore unqualifiedly pledged his adherence to the right so long as he lived. This was the beginning of his religious life.

It would be a good beginning for all of us. Whoever God may be, He is the embodiment of truth and right, and if we thoroughly line up ourselves with that we are not far from the Kingdom.

If we would all adhere strictly to our notions of right without reference to what other people think, the millennium would not be far off.

No man can be said truly to serve God so long as he is doing that which is wrong. His instincts are his best judge. There is more wisdom in a maiden's blush than in all the books of theology.

Let us all be fundamentalists in the sense of going back to the great fundamental, that is, the idea of doing right all the time. Whatever our creed or notion of religion may be we will not go very far astray if we adhere to the right.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE are two ways of being bad. One is doing it yourself. The other is—THINKING ABOUT THE OTHER FELLOW DOING IT.

I have two women in mind. They live in the same apartment house. One—I fear—is a bad woman. People who think things about her—raise their eyebrows queerly when she passes. She does not look bad. She looks very young and soft and fragrant. But they say that her footsteps sometimes stop at her door, at night—late at night. And one may hear a soft tapping.

Everyone considers the other woman very good. But she does not look as if her goodness made her very happy. She has a tight gray mouth and tighter gray eyes that all the time look a little angry. Why should she always look a little angry if she is so good? Why doesn't she enjoy her goodness?

The second woman lives across the hall from the first woman. When the footsteps come down the hall, very late at night, the Good Woman presses hard against her door and listens. There is a queer rattling noise in her eyes when she listens and a little cord in her back tightens. Sometimes dry spindles of red stand out on her forehead. It is as if she were to see that she is very important. As she is a soft tapping.

During the day the Good Woman spends a good deal of time at her window. Or looking out of her window, she tells her good woman friends about these footstep noises. As she talks her voice whiplashes over all the time like a thin, stinging lash. Sometimes she will talk steadily for forty-five minutes about the footstep noises. And how the Good Woman and how dreadful it is to live in the same apartment house with a woman like that. And how the footstep noises. And how the footstep noises. And how the footstep noises.

She talks about other things, too. About the short skirts the girls are wearing and the low socks and how

It Must Make a Young Man Feel—bad. One is doing it yourself. The other is—THINKING ABOUT THE OTHER FELLOW DOING IT.

And the time she saw Mr. Allen driving with a strange girl when his wife was out of town—And these awful new looks—And sometimes talking about the footstep noises. And how the Good Woman and how dreadful it is to live in the same apartment house with a woman like that. And how the footstep noises. And how the footstep noises.

As she talks her voice gets more and more angry and excited. And her eyes have a curious peering expression as if they tried up everything and looked under it. If you didn't know that she was a Very Good Woman and a thoroughly important woman you MIGHT think she was young.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Care should be taken that the punishment does not exceed the guilt and also that some men do not suffer too often for which others are not even indicted.

A sentence is one who under-stands and above every mark of deference to the claims of selfishness in others and exacts it in return from them.

A despotic nobility, or one that is proud of his birth, is like a turnip. There is nothing good of him but that which is underground.

A New Yorker's Europe
by O.O. McINTYRE

ST. MORITZ, March 13.—This winter resort, 6000 feet high in the Swiss Alps, is 18 hours from Paris and nestles in a bowl of snow-capped peaks. Here one breakfasts in the open air on the hotel porches and so clear and wine-like is the air there is no discomfort.

You see people sitting in the snow reading morning papers as comfortably as they would on a Long Island lawn in midsummer. The snow is like so much silver dust—dry and sparkling. It never melts in water, although the sun is warm enough to melt it.

The most perfect hotel service is found. The Swiss are noted innkeepers. The great Chateau Hotel can claim its career here. No flunkey meets you at the station. The porter himself is there with that dignified assurance that spells hospitality.

If you leave at 4 a. m. to be up at five, the Swiss are noted innkeepers. The great Chateau Hotel can claim its career here. No flunkey meets you at the station. The porter himself is there with that dignified assurance that spells hospitality.

There are several classes of smart shops filled with Paris creations. Life here can be peaceful and quiet or fast and furious as you desire. The hotel at the Palace, for instance, does not like it in the evening, but opens again at 2 a. m. for the other night revelers. And they revel plenty.

The Swiss are great linguists. They have no language of their own and all—even the children—speak German, French, Italian and English.

INN prices range from a dollar to $40 a day. It is a place where stretching forth itching palms and other playing around Europe awhile that is a comfort and don't I know it.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By Leola Allard

ALL the world is interested to know of what ingredients such a heroine as Lindbergh was made. The way he has courted and wooed millions of women and boys, above they are not made out of much.

A WOMAN buys a dollar down at a Milwaukee bargain counter had a rib cracked in the rush, and used the store for $3,000. The court ruled against her and said in so many words that what happened to a woman at a bargain counter is nobody's business. The Providence that takes care of certain affairs usually leaves over bargain counters.

MARY DAVIES, Welsh housewife, who inoculated herself with gas, gross germs, making possible a successful test of a remedy found by another doctor, is dead in London. Newspapers mentioned her briefly. For Mr. Ward got a column of pictures, including young at 61.

Pauline Garon got a picture and a half column for getting citizenship papers. John Nash got a picture and half a column for getting more new clothes.

A WOMAN lawyer of New York went to visit Kentucky relatives. A colored servant asked: "Miss Hamilton, I hear you know about law. How many would it cost me to get me a divorce?" She might get through it for $25.

A week later the lawyer asked the girl: "What did you do, Sarah, about your divorce?" "Well," she said, "I didn't get it. I saw a lamp for $10 and I figured I rather have that."

A New Octopus

The foundation of property is POWER. The great power, of course, is the power that nature supplies in water. The power that goes on forever, and that, once the machinery is installed, makes no charge.

Once upon a time men labored and produced the power with their own bodies, or took it from the bodies of horses or oxen. Now, man's work is DIRECTED POWER.

That power is sold by gigantic companies, rapidly forming themselves into one enormous United States Power Trust. A trust of that kind could easily become more powerful than the Government itself.

And already there are indications that the big power monopoly actually is able to control Government, or at least to thwart the plans of Government.

You have heard a great deal about harnessing the Colorado River, using for irrigation and for drinking water in great cities the water that now goes to waste. That would have been done long ago, but harnessing the Colorado River means producing POWER, MILLIONS OF HORSEPOWER.

That gigantic NEW POWER SUPPLY, owned by the people, perhaps operated by the Government at reasonable prices, would threaten the PRIVATE power monopoly.

You notice, therefore, that while there is much talk in the White House, the Senate, the House of Representatives, and in all the newspapers about harnessing the Colorado River, and while there is a great demand, bitter necessity for the water and power on the Pacific Coast, THAT POWER IS NOT HARNESSSED.

The simple reason is the Power Trust doesn't want it. It will consent, of course, to some arrangement provided it THE POWER TRUST CAN CONTROL.

Whenever the people get ready they can control their own power. Whenever they get ready they can operate their own telephones, telegraphs and railroads.

It is, fortunately, FOR THEM TO DECIDE. EVERYTHING IS IN THE BALLOT. Men need only learn to use it.

Whatever they do, of course, will be done justly. The methods of some of the trusts will not be imitated. There will be no confiscation, but honest plans at a fair vote.

The people will then realize that the men that built the railroads, the big power plants, showing brains and ingenuity, are entitled to honest pay for what they have done, and a good problem will be solved.
